I wish to thank you and [REDACTED] very much for your generous cooperation during my recent trip to the Boston area. Your suggestions were most helpful and contributed much to our effort to obtain useful information on the time sequence of capital construction expenditures for various types of industrial plants. Several promising avenues for further research have been opened up.

In my trip report I endeavored to report faithfully your views on economic conditions in China. Your remarks on limiting factors in the substitutability of labor for capital and on Japanese experience in intensifying labor inputs have been given particular attention.

Again may I express my appreciation for your help.

Sincerely,
